

O Hudd Ei Ddoe (From Yesterday's Shadows)

Myron Wyn Evans

PROF MYRON WYN EVANS presents the first volume of his autobiography covering the years 1950 to 1968, when he left Pontardawe Grammar School. The prose is interwoven with poetry, which is the distilled wisdom of any People. The book is unique in that it contains belles lettres prose and poetry in two languages; the author writes in Welsh (his first language) and English.

The book opens with an extensive and rigorously authentic genealogy going back to the mid fourth century in one branch of the family, and genealogy of all the other branches. The volume is eighteen years a growing in the village of Craig Cefn Parc and the small farm of "Pant y Bedw". Professor Evans has packed as many memories as he can into the book, and also accompanied the memories with contemporary history, the dangerous sixties of the Cuban missile crisis and the Vietnam war, which contrasted so strongly with the life of the farm, the village and the schools: Craig Cefn Parc Primary school and Pontardawe Grammar School.
